

5051 PIN Operated Account Terminal

Description

The 5051 terminal is a PIN operated copy management system compatible with most copiers and laser printers. The system will monitor and control both individual and departmental copy usage.

To make copies, a user simply keys in a valid numeric PIN code. The system manager has the option to control access to each copier, monitor who makes copies, the number of copies made and to which department they should be allocated. There is also an option of setting copy limits for either individuals or departments, or both if required.

The terminal does not require a network connection and there is no complicated software element to this simple solution. In addition to audit screen totals, printed reports can be generated using a portable printer.
